01 / Inspect

Open the workbook’s Addresses 100 sheet. Keep record IDs and ZIP values as text. Review source fields and any suspected errors.

02 / Geocode

Use the separate no-header Census batch CSV. Columns: ID, street, city, state, ZIP. Choose an available benchmark and save the returned results.

03 / Review

Join results by record ID and inspect mapped positions. Fill in Geocode Review, including match status, provider, coordinates, and notes.

04 / Explain

Compare overall and per-ZIP match rates. Export reviewed points, a map, and a quality report covering CRS, corrections, and unresolved records.

This is a snapshot of source-listed public facilities; current accuracy and geocoding results are not independently verified. Postal city and ZIP labels do not establish municipal boundaries. A returned match is not proof of an accurate physical-site location.

Underlying data: Hillsborough County GIS parks, libraries, and schools. Row-level sources are in the workbook and labeled CSV. Census batch documentation.

What an exact match means

Case, punctuation, common road types, and directions were normalized. An accepted record has the same street address and ZIP as one current reference point. Multiple matching points were not automatically selected.

This does not verify the facility’s identity, entrance, or surveyed position. Point type and capture method are included in the results.

The original county EGIS-Admin endpoint returned metadata and counts but failed on feature requests. The comparison therefore uses the City of Tampa GIS current county address-point service. Queried at UTC: 2026-10-22T01:14:16.910441+00:00.

Download contents: 100-row comparison CSV, 79 review candidates, 64 exact-match GeoJSON points (longitude/latitude, EPSG:4326), methodology, and per-ZIP counts. No fuzzy candidate was accepted as a match. No operational dispatch data was accessed.

Review the candidates sheet for alternatives and coordinates. Do not treat a different street, ZIP, unit, or multiple-point result as an approved location without resolving the difference. “No match” describes the outcome of the documented searches; it does not establish that an address is invalid.
